The Editor's

Column

Filling the editor's shoes, or whatever a person is supposed to fill when the editor is away, is no easy task—especially when that editor happens to be Wilma Cook. However, while Wilma basks in the sun of the Mojave desert, we will do our simple best.

As long as wildflowers are, for the most part, an uncontroversial subject, we will dwell on the beauties of nature as they unfold before your eyes on a drive up Carmel Valley.

As soon as you make the turn by Hatton's, you are welcomed by a riot of blue and gold, and as far as you can see there will be fields and rolling hills of poppies, lupin, buttercups, shooting stars, Johnny-jump-ups and many other varieties of California blossoms.

Even the wild mustard, the bane of the farmer's existence, lends itself to the vivid spectacle, and a trip up the Valley on one of these spring days will do wonders for the soul.

Those who haven't seen the Valley in the past year will be amazed at the development there—some good and some bad, very bad. Among the good developments are the Carmel Inn, the Outpost, and the new super Airway Market. The section just before arriving at the Robles Del Rio gate is fast becoming a village, and, thanks to enter-

Weekend Open Air Art Shows To Begin

Richard Norris of Carmel Highlands, who is the Vagabond at the picturesque Corner in the Pine Inn Court, is launching a new Carmel custom which is for the benefit of the Carmel Art Association artists. Beginning tomorrow, and every Saturday and Sunday thenceforth, there will be a clothes-line exhibit of local paintings in the Pine Inn Court from twelve noon to four o'clock, tourists welcome and paintings definitely for sale. There will be a Carmel artist behind his easel recording the colorful pageant of buyers, and a quick-fingered portraitist will at times wander between the tables sketching the informal lunchers at the patio tables. Mr. Norris will have the assistance of various members of the Carmel Art Association in the hanging and presentation of the event each week-end, for it is a community affair and everybody will take a turn in lightening the work of the committee in charge. Mrs. Nellie Montague, in behalf of the Carmel Art Association, has taken an interest in the proceeding and will lend her help week by week.

Now one will have something definite to point to when tourists ask: "But where can we see the artists of Carmel?" Many of the casual visitors hesitate to bid for pictures at the Art Gallery for fear they may be too grand for their pocketbooks, but in open air, beside an outdoor cafe that reminds of Paris, the unframed works of art can suggest "take me home with you" to the most modest admirers.

Easter Lilies

*How white against their gleaming leaves
The holy Easter lilies shine!
Here innocence stands visible
And earthly substance seems divine.*

*These sculptured petals without stain
Recall the heart to that which lies
Inviolate through tragedy
And dying fearless never dies.*

*What form destructible yet strong
Yields to the laws of time and death,
And rises with eternal song
Clothed on with light and April-breath?*

Famous Archaeologist Shows New Films From Constantinople

BY NANCY LOFTON

By way of the magnificent mosaics in Saint Sophia in Constantinople, Thomas Whittemore led a small entranced group of people at Hollow Hills Farm last Friday night out of the world of today and into the world which produced as its highest expression the building known first as Saint Sophia or Holy Wisdom and later as a mosque and today as a museum.

The Byzantine civilization found a glowing and able exponent in Mr. Whittemore. It was a world in which there was an integral vision of life—a world in which artists worked more or less anonymously as members of an orchestra to produce a great culture. It was a world in which buildings were designed as instruments of life, not as monuments. It was a world in which music and all the other arts existed not in some remote sphere of their own but as integral parts of the whole of life.

Mr. Whittemore, who made a very brief stay here, bears many distinguished titles and initials after his name. He has been the American representative on the Egyptian Exploration Fund since 1911. He has been a research fellow of Harvard University in Byzantine Art and a director of the Byzantine Institute and the Archaeological Institute of Bulgaria. He is in other words an authority on Byzantine culture, but the most important thing about him is that in his work of uncovering the mosaics of Saint Sophia he has found work that fills him with glowing and devoted enthusiasm.

Since 1932, during wars and revolutions, Mr. Whittemore has been in Constantinople directing the work of bringing again to light mosaics which have been hidden for almost five hundred years. During the recent war the governments of Turkey, England and the United States saw to it that he was able to continue his important work without too much interruption. When he first began to work there he had to use great care not to disturb the worshippers during their hours of prayer, for Saint Sophia was then a mosque. His sensations when he first broke through the plaster shell and found beneath it the Byzantine gold must have been like those of Keats on discovering Homer. Some time after he began to work, Attaturk rather arbitrarily decided that a building bearing within it such a freight of history should be a public place and the mosque became a museum. In colored moving pictures taken as the workers gently removed plaster and whitewash, Mr. Whittemore showed the slow processes by which the magnificent pictures were gradually revealed. In the great mosaic pattern, still being revealed, which unifies the interior of the building and is an essential and integral part of it, golden clouds of light surround the timeless figures of ancient kings and queens and saints who seem to float gently out toward the onlooker. Being closer to Oriental than to Occidental art, the figures are more conceptual than representational and the convention of linear perspective is not employed.

GETTING AROUND THE PENINSULA

By GLENN CLAIRMONTE

At the Salinas High School one of the best steps possible to make the world safe for pedestrians has been taken this semester. Nelson Sewell, principal, has inaugurated a full-credit course for students in the training of automobile drivers. Chesley Bentley, an instructor in the shop department, had made the suggestion because he noticed the demand rising among his pupils, and E. V. Dwyer has been detailed to conduct the classroom instruction. For the road work it is the custom to have the Junior College bus drivers take four or five of the pupils out at a time, giving each one time at the wheel while the others observe. Although the course at present is purely

Local Churches Celebrate Easter In Old Tradition

The official welcoming of springtime comes only on Easter Sunday when the populace again becomes aware of the Resurrection and what it implies in the personal life. Throughout the Peninsula there are services in the many churches to commemorate the climax of the Christian tradition.

In Carmel, as usual on Easter Sunday, both the Church of the

Valley Voters Go To Polls On Fire District

In an attempt to clarify the issue of whether or not property owners of Upper Carmel Valley are in favor of having a fire district inaugurated in that section, a mass meeting of Valley and Robles Del Rio residents was held Wednesday night at Robles Del Rio Lodge recreation hall, and the subject was discussed pro and con by interested parties.

On Monday, April 7, voters will go to the polls at Rosie's Cracker Barrel from 1 until 6 p. m. to vote yes or no on the subject. The matter of establishing a fire district in the community with its own truck and equipment, paid and volunteer members, was originally sponsored by the Robles Del Rio Improvement Club, under the direction of George Koch.

At present, the district operates under the fire division of the State Forestry Service. Because the entire district is considered a hazardous fire area, commercial enterprises are at present paying a high rate of fire insurance. With the installation of such a district, it was explained, insurance rates would drop for such places of business, but the county tax rate would, in turn, increase to pay for the equipment.

The district under consideration

Wayfarer and All Saints' Church will hold nine-thirty and eleven o'clock services, and regular attendants are requested to come to the early service in order to make room at the eleven o'clock hour for the visitors. At both churches the parishioners have been asked to consider the early service as especially for the family, and parents are to bring their children with them. There will be no eleven o'clock nursery for Easter morning. At All Saints' the organ prelude will be Mozart's Alleluia and Rinsky-Korsakoff's Easter. During the offertory the choir will sing We Will Carol Joyfully, by Means, directed by Miss Alice Keith. In the Church of the Wayfarer the Rev. Dr. C. L. Trawin, for eight years a resident of Carmel, will speak on The Leader Who Knew Where He Was Going for the young people and their parents at the 9:30 service, and at the 11:00 o'clock service his sermon subject will be Resurrection As God's Answer.

There will be the usual three Easter services in St. John's Chapel, opposite the Del Monte Naval Training School, Holy Communion celebrated at each, and identical sermons will be given at the 9:30 and 11:00 services by the Rev. Theodore Bell. Mrs. William Swain will be at the organ and Miss Sue Estell Tuck will direct the choir.

Of course at the San Carlos Church in Monterey, where the unchurched may at least stop to pray beneath the Lady of Lourdes, and at the Carmel Mission, vast throngs of worshippers have found

Mrs. Helen Russell To Speak Here April 20

Leo Harris, superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District, is on vacation this week but he is not missing any opportunities to be of service to the community. He has just wired that he has been successful in scheduling Mrs. Helen Crocker Russell to speak at the Sunset Auditorium on the afternoon of Sunday, April 20, on the subject of her experiences in Paris and Berlin as a member of the American Committee of the United Nations Education and Science Council.

Among local residents who are sponsoring this talk are Mrs. Sydney Fish, Mrs. Robinson Jeffers and Dr. L. A. Williams. This committee will meet at the home of Dr. Remsen Bird, at Sixteenth and Valley View, on Monday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock to make final arrangements, and any interested persons are invited to attend.

Mrs. Russell is the widow of the late Henry Potter Russell and when in this country she makes her home at the famous Russell ranch in Carmel Valley.

GIANTS UPSET IN ABALONE PLAY; SHAMROCKS WIN

Charley Childers' Pilots proved a stumbling block for Art Hull's Giants in last Sunday's feature game in the Abalone League. The Pilots took a liking to the offerings of George DeAmaral and when the dust of battle had cleared away Childers' gang was in front, 9 to 7. Jay Huffman pitched steady ball for the Pilots and contributed some timely blows to aid his own cause.

With the Giants tumbling from the undefeated list the league leadership becomes a three-way tie with the Giants, Pilots, and Shamrocks vying for the top spot.

Jack Giles' Shamrocks showed the form expected of them all season when they walloped Cree Wilder's Tigers, 13 to 4. An orgy of base hits rained off the bats of the hustling Shamrocks as they ran roughshod over the hapless Tigers. Sterling mound work by the skipper himself held the Tigers at bay for most of the afternoon.

CARMEL CINDERMEN SHY ON POINTS; SHINE IN EVENTS

The Monterey Toreador trackmen ran roughshod over the Pacific Grove and Carmel thinclads, but the smaller school participants stole the honors as far as individual times and performances were concerned.

Monterey accumulated 74 points to 32 for Pacific Grove and 31 for Carmel. A clean sweep in the 440-yard run gave the Monterey lads an insurmountable lead which was not threatened for the rest of the afternoon.

Bob Barry turned in the most sensational performance of the afternoon when he came from deep in the ruck to outfinish all other performers in the mile run to win by a good 50 yards. Bob was content to lay back and rely on his courageous finish to carry him to victory. At the half-mile pole Barry did not have a boy beaten in the mile race, but he started to move up after the  $\frac{3}{4}$ -mile and turned on the heat for the last 440.

Paul Warner served notice that he will be a threat to all CCAL hurdlers by handily outrunning the Pacific Grove and Monterey timber-toppers in the high sticks. Paul also ran second in the low hurdles but had to overcome step obstacles in this race.

Peter Ott showed definite promise in the furlong dash by taking a strong second to Martin, the ace performer for Monterey. Ott has been running strong races for the last two meets and should make all his opponents hustle to gain the nod over him.

Dick Gargiulo ran into tough luck in the century dash when he was guilty of a quick start in his first effort and was left in his holes on the actual start. Dick ran second in this event and was gaining toward the finish which is encouraging for future events.

The Carmel lightweights were pretty much outclassed by the depth and speed of the Pacific Grove Babes and were content with a meager 17 markers. Mendez showed his heels to the field in the 1320-yard run. Legare McNeill placed in both the 120 and 110-yard hurdles to accumulate 3 points for the Padre cause. McNeill has the potential ability to make all the lightweight hurdlers in the league hustle to keep up with him.

Gene Vandervort tied up in the shot put and had to be content with a fourth place when he is capable of taking a first in the type of competition encountered at this meet.

Varsity: 120 high hurdles, Warner 5, Pitman 1; 880 yard, Harber 2; 180 yard low hurdles, Warner 3, Pitman 1; 100 yard, Gargiulo 3; 220 yard, Ott 3; Mile, Barry 5, DeAmaral 1; Discus, Winslow 2; High Jump, Pitman 2; Pole Vault, Cross 4.

Lightweights: 75 yard, Shearn 1; 150 yard, Shearn 2; 120 high hurdles, McNeill 2; 660, Berg 3, Goodrick 1; 120 yard low hurdles, McNeill 1; 1320, Mendez 5; Machado 2; Shotput, Vandervort 1.

KING CITY DEFEATS PADRE NINE IN PREP LEAGUE PLAY

Good clutch hitting by Mustang batters coupled with a fine exhibition of hurling by Frazier, King City pitcher, proved the undoing of the Carmel High School horsehiders last Friday afternoon. Frazier struck out 12 Padre swingers and kept the five hits allowed well scattered.

Carmel broke into the score column first on the strength of Sumner's walk, a steal of second, and Lee Winslow's single into left. The Mustangs came back in the fourth frame to tie the score and go in front by one run. In the seventh inning King City scored another marker when the Padres were guilty of two miscues afieid.

Lee Winslow pitched good enough ball to win most games but sloppy play in the field and lack of hitting support was too much to overcome. Lee struck out 11 batters in the seven inning game.

Newt Goodrich took top honors as a hitter when he connected for two blows in three attempts. Newt also handled his right field chores in a flawless manner.

PINE CONE SOFTBALL SQUAD SCHEDULES WORKOUT

President Gene Ricketts has called a practice for The Pine Cone softballers for next Wednesday night at 7 p. m. at the Sunset field. As an ambitious schedule has been arranged for the coming season it is imperative that all candidates get in playing condition at the earliest time. A short practice session was held last Tuesday evening when the following pastimers reported for duty: Harold Studevant, Ky Miyamoto, Gene Ricketts, Raleigh Belvail, John Younkin, Gordy Miyamoto, Jim Kelsey, Kelly Taylor, Jay Huffman, Archie Miyamoto, Joe Nicholson, and Jack Giles.

ANNUAL GOLF TOURNEY

Tomorrow afternoon the Cypress Point Golf Club will hold the golf tournament which is conducted each year by Frank T. Heffelfinger of Minneapolis. There will be about thirty participants who will lunch as Mr. Heffelfinger's guests at the club and after the event they and their friends will meet for cocktails while the prizes are awarded. Mr. Heffelfinger has been coming to the Peninsula regularly for thirty years and this occasion is one of his favorite annual projects.

OVER THE TOP

Matthew C. Jenkins, chairman of the Red Cross campaign, announces that Carmel contributions to date have amounted to $18,000, nearly $3,000 above the quota for this area, in spite of the fact that the number of smaller contributors has not been as great as he could wish. He is going to keep the tent near the Post Office open until the end of the week in the hope that a greater number may still wish to contribute. The membership as of yesterday was only 1,467, whereas during the war as many as 4,000 from Carmel joined for each year.

They have about them a timeless life and yet each figure is not only a symbol but also a sort of abstraction of the individual, endowed with a life beyond life. There is one head of an early saint particularly startling in its vitality and movement which looks akin to both Michelangelo and Blake. In all of the figures, covering a thousand years, there is a complete absence of the tortured angularity and twisted asceticism which is sometimes associated with Byzantine art.

Mr. Whittemore spoke of the unusual character of Saint Sophia which is the only building in the world which contains a fairly continuous record of painting extending over a thousand years. The mosaics are paintings in the sense that instead of using paint as a medium the artists used cubes of colored glass and stone. The mosaics were begun around the fifth century and completed nearly a thousand years later but the creation as a whole is unified and integrated in all its parts. In constructing the building light was one of the materials. The church was designed as an instrument for life, and living light from all directions but the north was brought into its design. Regarding the north light as dead and indirect, the architect who designed the church oriented it to receive light from east, west and south. In the mosaics this sense of light as a building material more important than stone or brick is very apparent. Each nucleus in the mosaic pattern was designed for a particular part of the services and was so placed and designed that at the moment when attention should be directed to it the light would be full upon it. The tiny facets of the stones are set in such a way that they catch light and mold it and reflect it to create a living, glowing picture. The golden backgrounds surround the figures with a nimbus of shimmering light which is skillfully directed first to the central figure and then to the beholder. In one figure of Mary, her blue robes are made of glass fused at a very low temperature to leave the glass full of tiny bubbles which serve as a million tiny reflective and refractive surfaces, giving to the blue of her robe a strange depth and brilliance. In the backgrounds the gold is frequently combined with silver, "that the gold might not seem brass." The gold of the backgrounds was made from cubes of glass over which was applied gold leaf which was in turn covered with clear glass and as a result the quivering gold light is as bright today as it was when the cubes were set.

It was fascinating to study in the detailed moving pictures the ways in which the cubes were placed to control the flow of light on either convex or concave, flat or arched surfaces. The focus of interest is always the spectator. Whatever the source of light, the light was directed to fall on the face of the man who beholds it.

The history of the mosaics and the church is remarkable. That the two together should have survived both civil and holy wars and time itself is almost beyond belief.

Fortunately there has been no restoration. The mosaics are cleaned, any holes are patched with a neutral substance, invisible copper pins are inserted to strengthen the adherence of the fresco base in which the cubes are set to the brick substructure, but the work is left as its creators conceived it, a shining and beautiful inheritance from the Byzantine civilization which was a mosaic itself containing within it elements from the Grecian, Roman, Semitic and Oriental civilizations from which the Byzantine world created something peculiarly its own.

Ivy May Hewetson

Mrs. Ivy May Hewetson, wife of Angelo Hewetson, the architect, died on March 30, at the age of 62, in her home at North Camino Real, after an illness of several months. She had been born in Bromley, Kent, England, but had lived in San Francisco for many years, and a year ago her husband brought her to Carmel in the hope that her health would be benefited by the change. She is survived by her husband and by a brother, Francis T. Gresham of Monterey.

Services were held last Tuesday, the Rev. James G. Baxter, a Baptist preacher of New Monterey, officiating. The Paul Mortuary had charge of the arrangements for the inurnment at the Salinas Crematorium.

Carl Bachelder

Carl Amos Bachelder, Jr., died at his home at Dolores and Santa Lucia, on April 1, as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident at the intersection of Munras avenue and Cass street in Monterey a few days earlier. He was 45 years old, a native of Oakland, California, and the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Amos Bachelder, Sr., who survive him. Also surviving is his daughter, Mrs. Barbara Holt of Pasadena. T. A. Dorney Mortuary made arrangements to have the remains taken to Oakland where services were held yesterday.

is roughly ten miles long and extends from the S. F. B. Morse ranch to a point beyond the Tularcitos ranch.

Ranchers, in general, who were in attendance at the meeting were opposed to such a fire district, inasmuch as their greatest fire hazard is in brush and forest fires, which destroy both feed and cattle. Many of these first start in inaccessible areas, where a fire truck would be useless.

The meeting was conducted by Dave Prince, manager of the Carmel Inn, and among those who spoke during the evening were representatives of the State Board of Fire Underwriters, a spokesman for the ranchers, commercial establishment owners and residential property owners.

Due to a certain amount of heckling during the evening, the issue at stake was often obscure.

consolation and inspiration throughout Holy week.

This afternoon at Carmel Mission, the Three Hour Service begins at 12:00 o'clock noon with celebration of the Mass of the Pre-Sanctified. The sermon will be given by the Reverend Eric O'Brien, O. F. M. Vice-Postulator of the Cause for the Canonization of Father Serra, who has just returned from Rome. Mass will be followed by the Stations of the Cross and will close with the ancient and traditional Spanish ceremony brought by Padre Serra and the Franciscan Padres to the Missions of the New World and now observed at Carmel Mission only. This beautiful and deeply moving religious ceremony symbolizes the Descent from the Cross. From the life-sized figure on the old Spanish Cross the crown of thorns is removed, the nails taken from the hands and feet of the corpus, and the corpus reverently lowered from the Cross, placed on a bier and carried in procession to an altar in the side chapel for the veneration of the faithful. This enactment of the 13th and 14th Stations is carried out with such simplicity and devotion one stands, for the moment, at the foot of the Cross on Calvary.

Solemn High Mass will be celebrated at 11 o'clock at the Mission, with other masses at 7, 8 and 9:30 a. m.

First of all on Sunday morning, at 5:40, a Sunrise service will be held at Lovers Point, on the pile of rocks above the swimming pool, from where the first colors of the day can be seen to reach from beyond the far hills and spread across the water. Wilfred Mack of Pacific Grove is in charge of the arrangements, which the Peninsula Christian Committee is sponsoring. Paul Mason of Monterey will preside, and the service will open with a trumpet solo by the Rev. John Lavendar, Christ the Lord Is Risen Today. Mr. Lavendar is the nationally known speaker for Youth for Christ.

There will be community singing of hymns such as Christ Arose, and instead of the usual reading of Scriptures there will be a recita-

Philosophy Is Lecture Subject

The Realm of Faith, a discussion based on a manuscript he prepared in 1906 and read at the University at Urbana, Illinois, Dr. E. O. Sisson admitted as treating a "huge subject . . . almost as deep as life . . . a world-spanning idea," that could be considered only briefly in a short afternoon's program. Dr. Sisson was speaking to the Women's Auxiliary of the Church of the Wayfarer on Tuesday afternoon on one division of his specialty, philosophy, in many years as a university professor. In this discussion he spoke from the religious point of view as distinguished from the realm of reason. He referred to the new interpretation of creation brought about by the study of evolution, but the early, narrow religious teaching still is given in some groups today. "Believe is a dangerous word," he said, as its force depends upon its use, whether in the realm of reason, or on the other hand, in the realm of faith. Reason deals with facts, and belief can't change them or affect their validity. Facts are fixed.

Faith, as contrasted with reason, deals with the future, it represents what is malleable. Dr. Sisson pointed out that Jesus used the word always with reference to "doing something about something," power, drive, is the key to his use of the word. It is not static but dynamic, with power "to move mountains," an idea supported by the citation, "Faith without works is dead." In the early Christian centuries the church was led to use the word believe for have faith, using the static term instead of the active phrase, and that interpretation persists to this day. Jesus, however, was a dynamic person, always doing something about conditions in the world. The speaker cited incidents in Jesus' life and activity in support of this interpretation of faith. He also pointed out the drive of faith in man's activity today, as in early-day Seattle, whose founders literally moved a mountain, leveling it off into the water by use of hydraulic power, to make room for the city's buildings.

The crux of the world's problems today, said Dr. Sisson, is sovereignty, just as it was after the American Revolution, when none of the thirteen new states was willing to relinquish any sovereignty. The United States is unwilling to give up sovereignty now, and just so far it lacks faith—e. g. in the United Nations or in an international adjustment. Faith would mean action, finding a way out of the difficulties.

Turning aside a bit to education, training of children, he said one must "believe boys" (he knew boys but did not claim to understand girls.) "Believe a boy even when you know he's lying!" (Paradox thought it may be.) "Boys tell far fewer lies than do grown people. It is an indispensable thing to a child to have the respect of his parents and other adults. . . . The injunction, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself,' implies love for oneself, not conceit or egotism, but self respect, the ability to feel the values in oneself. Developing this ability is an important part of training children, and the tendency to lying can be sloughed off in the process."

Angna Enters Recital Here Tomorrow Night

Hailed as "one of the few great theatre artists this age has been privileged to witness, and in her own metier unquestionably the greatest of them all," the famous dance-mime Angna Enters arrives in Carmel tomorrow to give one of her "Episodes in Dance Form" on the stage of the Sunset School Auditorium at eight-thirty in the evening.

In an Enters program the audience sees Miss Enters' strangely magnetic, mysterious, personality people the stage with every type: one finds the comic, the tragic, the erotic, the gentle and the cruel—stunningly costumed, and with an assortment of props that bear witness to the creative genius of the dancer-actress. Kenneth Yost will furnish accompanying music at the piano.

The program will include the delightfully funny "Dilly Dally"; the amusing "Madame Pompadour," in which Miss Enters struggles with the costumes of a former day from a red corset to a hair style of unbelievable weight; "Aprodisiac," showing the Parisian cocotte plying her trade, stopping for a sip of absinthe; "Pavane," from sixteenth century Spain; American Ballet, in which the period of Irene Castle is hilariously burlesqued; "Balletomane-Connaisseur;" "Boy Cardinal," repeated by request from Miss Enters' former appearance in Carmel.

Easter Morning Credo

By Eleanor (Nelly) Montague

In a world streamlined for speed, shining with science, the son of man arises. He presses a button—there is light; he presses another—there is heat. He turns a third and hears the voices of the world. He lifts a bar and speaks to the ends of the earth.

But he himself stands encased in the fragile bag of humors in which he came into the world; an envelope to which a pin-prick may prove fatal; a container that dies and stinks, and dissolves into the elements—and leaves no trace. A body in which he dwells a brief flit of time. A frail house out of which he peers and perceives—What?

He looks at the stars and sees worlds. He watches the lightning and beholds power. He gazes into the crucible and the microscope and finds the atom. He toys with it and it bursts. He turns his eyes sideward to his brother, whom he fears, and for—Why?

Has he not a face like his face? Hands like his hands? A heart that yearns as his yearns? Does he not rise, too, on Easter Morning with an ancient and searching hunger in his soul? Why for does he fear his brother; and the other?

Why, when man within his frail house can see so much, can he not look at his neighbor toiling in his field and perceive that there truly "also walketh God."

Is there only One who has so seen? Only One whose soul's vision has leaped the ages in a trajectory so vast that after two thousand years, the rest of us can peer but dimly in the direction of its flight?

Only One whose genius perceived, whose art conveyed, a message that haunts the hungering hearts of men. Only One who saw into the souls of his brothers and said, "The kingdom of Heaven is within You."

Rollo Peters Is In Town To Renew Old Friendships And Revive Old Memories

BY GLENN CLAIRMONTE

Rollo Peters has just concluded one of his frequent visits to the Monterey Peninsula, during which he enjoyed many hours with artists and writers who have long been his friends.

In spite of the changes that have taken place in this region, there is still within his personal fabric the great days of his childhood when he shared the expansive country home of his father, the late Charles Rollo Peters of painting fame, which was at the point where Peters Gate now stands. The grand manner of living was possible then, when the stables were alive with thoroughbreds, and conversation at every meal was indicative of high thinking and warm hospitality.

One of the memories which endears his childhood is in connection with dinner parties for the old-time Carmel writers. On a dark night after great books and greater ideas had been discussed before the blazing logs, George Sterling and Jack London said their good-nights and set out on foot to cross the mountain toward their own homes. Rollo was awestruck at the courage of these men, to be able to make their way through the untracked forest where coyotes and mountain lions were known to be slinking. So much of the country was sand waste at that time, the distances seeming vaster than they seem today, that the full romance of these friendships bloomed in the dreaming youth.

Rollo Peters, after one year in Monterey High School, in 1910 was taken to Europe and there finished his education in art, being expected, naturally, to follow in his father's footsteps. But Rollo had an aptitude for architecture and design, and when he returned to New York he first attached himself to the theater in the role of a scene painter, though it was not long before he was recognized for his histrionic talents. He played the lead opposite Katherine Cornell in The Age of Innocence, and for one thousand nights played Romeo opposite Jane Cowl. As he matured, he found his interest turning to stage direction, and he produced among many other plays The Taming of the Shrew long before the Lunts made a modern drama of the same Shakespearean comedy, accepting many of Rollo's innovations for attaining a popular success with it.

Rollo Peters was one of the founders of the New York Theater Guild in 1919, and during the phenomenal success of that group he was often producer, director, scene painter and leading man all at once, on a drawing account of fifty dollars a week. When Hollywood offers reached him, with a promise of $500 a week to start and unbelievable increases within a short time, he was not tempted. He and the other members of the Theatre Guild were devoted to their work in presenting fine plays to the New York public in their own best technique, and the compensation was not a matter for consideration. He believes that the success of that group was due to the fact that they were dedicated to the cause itself and were willing to sacrifice individual glory by enacting small parts with perfection while others attracted the public's wider attention in star parts. This also, Mr. Peters explains, is the explanation for the remarkable success of the Old Vic Theatre in England, a group of about forty players, many of them superior artists and all above the average in capacity. Each one of them is willing to further the success of the entire group at whatever personal sacrifice, with the result that bit parts are enacted superbly, with no detriment of personal spotlight.

During the war Mr. Peters took a company to Europe in order to present Blithe Spirit for the Armed Forces, and with Peggy Wood in the feminine lead he played in gigantic hangars or tiny huts, in shelters or in exposed theaters, during raids and after the all-clear without discrimination. The sailors and soldiers who made up his audiences were the most responsive he ever knew, and there was no sense of monotony in enacting the same role repeatedly because the conditions and the audiences changed constantly, and variety was the daily diet.

For some years now, with the exception of the war interlude, Mr. Peters has felt less interest in dramatic work except from the standpoint of a director, and has turned his artistic training to restoring many of the old Colonial houses still to be found along the west shore of the Hudson River. Even in this field, however, he has kept in close touch with theater people, many of whom have made their homes on his acres, "Forty Minutes from Broadway" by motor. And it is easy to recognize, from the way that Mr. Peters speaks of Ethel Barrymore and the Lunts and Ina Claire and many of the other creators of American drama, that his true career has been in the making of friendships. He may at first think that it was during the war, and on foreign soil, that the deep affections between him and his friends of the theater were most greatly felt, but there was the same betrayal of love for his friends when he mentioned meeting them in New York or Los Angeles.

The richness that began in his childhood among the poets and writers of Carmel has followed him and become imbedded in his life, and he still exudes the finest reason for living, love for his friends.

Dr. Remsen Bird To Speak At Class

WHEN we are thirsty and lift a glass of cold water to our lips we feel a deep sense of satisfaction and often some appreciation for this mighty gift of Nature.

For water is truly a gift, like the air we breathe and the light and warmth of the sun. Why then, even this infinitesimal cost of 5 cents for 3,000 glasses? Certainly it is not for the water, but for the gathering, storing and distributing of the water, which are enterprises of men. In this modern age we do not go to the pump for our water, nor do we set out the rain barrel. We turn a faucet. A flick of the finger and we have a cataract at our command.

Hi Chatter

By MARY GREGORY

The exciting Easter vacation got off to a gala start last Saturday night with the Boys' Club dance. Besides all the usual crowd, we saw Jacquelyn Work down from Anna Head's school in Berkeley, Edith Elizalde from Edith Hamlin's in San Francisco, (Nancy Shuman is another Hamlin's girl down for the vacation), Scott Hendricks and Bill Gargiulo from San Jose State, Bill Moore from Stanford, and Bill Finger, who is spending a few days here between voyages with the Merchant Marine.

The outstanding event of this vacation was the Tennis Dance at the high school gym last Tuesday evening. Over 250 students from high schools all over the state, enjoyed the dance, which was expertly planned and decorated by Janet Richey, Ann Fratessa, and Basil Allaire. Sheila O'Brien, former Carmel Hi student now attending Anna Head's, is visiting Janet, and she too, gave generously of her time. Joe Principato's orchestra supplied the music for the affair.

Wednesday night Susan Moore gave an "open house," which, as the many other dances she has given, was a tremendous success.

Interesting and exciting vacations are being had by many Carmel students. "Teddy" and Al Greene, with their parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Greene, have spent the week in Sun Valley skiing. Lorraine Harris flew Wednesday to Oregon to visit Jacquelyn Newburn, daughter of the president of the University of Oregon. John Blinks also left Wednesday to vacation with his grandfather. Ruth Van Niel is spending the holidays with the Howards of Mill Valley, and Dan Holmes is with his parents on their ranch in Gerber.

Many Carmel alumni have been seen about town enjoying the recess between semesters. Seen at the track meet Saturday were Barbara May, down from Oregon State, Alice Morehouse from Cal, and Joan Dekker from Stanford. Martin Irwin, Clayton Neill, and Esther Van Niell were also here from Stanford.

Maj. Gen. Sharp

News of the death of Major General William Fletcher Sharp has just been received from Maryland where General and Mrs. Sharp have been living since leaving Carmel. While the General was on the staff of the Fourth Army at the Presidio, Mrs. Sharp devoted herself to war work, and this she continued during the years while her husband was serving in the Philippines and in command of our forces in Mindanao. She made many friends on the Peninsula who will extend their sympathy to her at this time.

General Sharp was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his accomplishments at Mindanao, and was always recognized as an outstanding officer. During his imprisonment by the Japanese, along with General Wainwright, his health suffered to the point where it was impossible to recover completely, and his death at this time is attributed to the privations of that period.

RADIO CLASS BEGINS

A class in radio production will begin next week at the Monterey Adult School under the direction of Miss Mary Mallory and will meet each Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7:30. Each student will be given the opportunity of learning by actual experience and all phases of radio work will be taken up during the course. The public is invited to attend without charge.

Col. Taylor

News has just been received of the death on March 27, in Boston, of Colonel Theodore B. Taylor, U. S. A. Retired, who was a resident of Carmel for many years. He has been living in the east since 1944. While here he took an active part in civic affairs and was one of the pillars of the American Legion Post, serving as commander. Colonel Taylor had served in the Spanish-American war and during the Philippine insurrection, and since his retirement from the Army in 1933 had been active in Red Cross and USO work. He leaves scores of friends on the Peninsula who will be saddened at the news of his passing.

On Monday evening at 7:30 there will be a showing of color photography by Mrs. E. C. Sherburne in the Music Room of Sunset School, sponsored by Mrs. Leota Tucker's class in photography. Any students of color camera technique will be welcome to attend. Mrs. Sherburne will show not only specimens of the beauty attainable by the successful photographer, but will stress the methods by which the best effects can be produced. Her study of light and its uses in gaining an artistic result with Kodachrome makes it possible for her to relay her personal discoveries in this realm. She has lectured on this subject in the east on many occasions but this is the first chance that the Carmel public has had to receive her instruction.

Have You Read . . . ?

BY FERDINAND W. HAASIS

Published last year and then enlarged and republished within the twelvemonth is "Willy Pogany's Drawing Lessons." The title is a bit misleading as the book's primary concern is with the human figure. Thus many vast realms of drawing are ignored or barely touched upon. Architecture receives very scant treatment and only incidentally to bring out some principles of perspective. Landscape is almost absent. There is little help to be gotten from this book if one wishes to portray trees or crags, storms or ships, crabs or gulls or sea urchins, surf or clouds, or to use the strict technic of mechanical drawing. Four-footed animals are included to a limited extent, together with a few synthetic concepts such as the centaur. There is scarcely any mention of materials for drawing. No, the title is rather too ambitious for the subject matter.

Considering the book in its actual restricted field, however, it should prove a very useful addition to the student's library. The brief text has some distinctly apt suggestions. The animation portrayed in some of the drawings is very remarkable as to the body as a whole and as to facial features. Among the illustrations can be found examples of expressions indicating surprise and fear, the calm happiness of age, fatigue, joy, and even mischievousness. The clothing shown is, for the most part, not of current modes. There are some fine convincing action studies of horses.

One or two remarks are in order about the format. The book is, oddly, gotten up without page numbers. This makes it a little awkward to refer to. Wishing to consult a certain picture again, for example, the reader has little choice but to thumb through the volume till he happens to uncover it. There is a table of contents, to be sure, but no indication of how many pages are devoted to each subject, nor, indeed, of the precise sequence of topics. Here I can almost hear the comment: "And so what? We in Carmel get along very well without house numbers, don't we?" Yes, of course, but that's different! That is, it seems to me it's different—but maybe, after all, there's more similarity than is at first apparent. How much do we really need page numbers in our books after all? They do, at least, help us to know whether all pages are present, if that makes any difference. Another thing about the format of the book is that the binding is not of the conventional style, but consists of a series of plastic rings. With this type of binding it is probably easier to get the leaves to lie flat. Presumably it would facilitate removal of leaves also, if one were so inclined—another headache for the librarian.

This book can profitably be compared with Andrew Loomis' similar book frankly and directly titled, "Figure Drawing for All It's Worth." Loomis' book, on the whole, is far more detailed and comprehensive. Selling for approximately the same price, its 204 pages of text and illustrations cover its field much more thoroughly than do those of Pogany's book (which total 128, according to my count). The paper of Pogany's is better, but that of Loomis' adequate. Loomis goes into the fundamental mechanics to a greater extent than Pogany (though at times there is a certain lack of logical sequence in his presentation and an occasional failure to comprehend the difference between teaching directly and through the more impersonal medium of the printed book with its greater need for comprehending and anticipating the student's psychological reactions). Loomis, in addition, offers a series of practical suggestions from the standpoint of commercial art.

Another comparison that can well be made is with Roger Vernam's "Drawing People for Fun." Pogany's book is simply lacking in the genre treatment so conspicuous in Vernam's.

In closing it might be mentioned that, according to "Who's Who", Pogany pronounces his name with the accent on the first syllable and a soft g.

*A Child was born in Bethlehem
Who learned the paths of Galilee,
He wandered by Gennesaret,
And learned to know each forest tree.*

*Now I was born in Marlborough
And love the friendly faces there;
And so for all the world beside
'Tis little love I have to spare.*

*I would not grieve to die for them,
My own loved ones, my comrades true,
But that great Heart of Nazareth,
He died for men He never knew:*

*And yet I think on Golgotha,
When Jesus' eyes were dim in death,
He saw with love most passionate
The village street of Nazareth.*

The grinding,
Grinding,
As they take my leg;
I see
The Christ upon His Cross!*

*My hands are numb and broken,
I am blind;
And I can neither feel nor see
My little pot of violets;
So I bend to kiss
The small, sweet flowers
That mean so much to me.*

*Men hate me for the curse I bear
(I know it well)
But shall I heed them
Since my heart can be
A holy temple
Where my God can dwell?*

For prayer;
And every dawn I find a nightingale
Is singing there.*

WHILE CHILDREN STARVE

*Not while a child goes hungry or unclothed
Can I at peace with plenty eat my bread.
Bounty is shameful, safety something loathed;
Let me go cold and comfortless instead.*

*Outwardly I conform. As mother, wife,
I keep my home serene, my hearth secure;
But in my heart goes on that bitter strife
Against the ills the innocent endure.*

*But for the grace of God I too would bend
Wringing my hands to heaven to befriend
Even with death, the helpless suffering there—
It is so little worth to grieve . . . and yet,
Were it not worse than worthless to forget?*

Days Before Yesterday

BY ROSALIND SHARPE

In the days when A. M. Allan owned Point Lobos, many Carmel residents had a fit on account of having to pay a toll at the gate. They thought they had a right to enter the property free of charge. Eventually this led to a law-suit which was settled in Mr. Allan's favor and eventually Mr. Allan sold Point Lobos to the state for a Park. (Toll still charged, of course). Back in 1921, in the July 14 issue, the Pine Cone jumped into the fight with both feet and after delivering a pretty hot editorial first paragraph, launched into an interesting history of Point Lobos and the Monterey peninsula.

"It is recorded that numerous members of the two tribes of Indians, known as Achasliens and Eccemachs, whose habitations were on and near Point Carmel (Lobos), before the coming of the white man, lived to the age of one hundred years, and some to the age of one hundred and forty years.

"A visit there lends conviction to the truth of that statement; no place can be more conducive to longevity. The salutary atmosphere of pine and ocean, in a climate with no extremes of temperature, combined with natural scenery that has strong appeal to all peoples, mark Point Carmel as a place most graciously endowed by nature."

The article goes on to tell of the voyage of Cabrillo in 1542 when he sailed up the California coast seeking for gold and mentioned Carmel bay in his log-book; and the voyage of Vizcaino in 1602 which led to the discovery of Monterey.

Vizcaino's letter to King Philip of Spain reporting the discovery is quoted giving vivid description of the native Indians.

"It is thickly settled with people," Vizcaino wrote, "whom I found to be of a gentle disposition, peaceful and tractable. They are of good stature and fair complexion. Their clothing consists of the skins of the sea-wolf (otter). They have vessels of pine and other wood in which they go to sea. They are well acquainted with gold and silver and said they were found in the interior."

Vizcaino's description contradicts that of other California explorers and historians who declare that the Indians indigenous to the Monterey and Carmel region wore no clothing, didn't have boats, and knew nothing of gold and silver until the Spanish gave them an awareness of its value.

"The only riches Vizcaino brought back to Mexico," the article continues, "were a few otter skins and feathered ornaments, and until 1771 the Indians of Point Carmel were undisturbed among their pines." But in 1771, Father Junipero Serra established Mission San Carlos de Borromeo near the mouth of the Carmel River and the Indians were attracted into the Mission. "The Indians took kindly to the easy life offered them at the mission, responding willingly to the call of vespers and the gentle teaching of the revered padres who remained for many years. At that time more than a thousand Indians of Point Carmel and vicinity lived peacefully in their tule houses. They are now extinct."

Turning from the subject of Indians (who, after all, were extinct) the article goes on to tell of the Portuguese who established a whale fishing station at Point Lobos in 1851. The whaling station was "on a cove on the northern side of Point Carmel. Their picturesque hamlet was abandoned when whales became scarce in the adjacent waters. In the early 70's, a Chinese fishing village occupied that site; after a few years it, too, disappeared."

"Today" says the article, showing its teeth, "this landscape lovely, on the verge of the sea, a headland where abound fantastic cypresses and live oaks, amid murmuring pines, a poetical natural park, bulwarked by massive boulders

Dr. Crowther's Memory Honored In Simple Palm Sunday Service

Members and friends of the Church of the Wayfarer gathered Sunday afternoon for a memorial service for their pastor, Dr. James E. Crowther, who had given his farewell message only three weeks before and announced that he was retiring. Little did they dream at that time that his going would come so swiftly and with such finality. Soft organ music, played by Margaret Sherman Lea, established the mood of the service, clusters of white tulips on the altar stood up bravely, showing their yellow hearts. It was simple and sincere as their pastor would have had it. His favorite hymns were sung.

Mr. Howard Timbers read the scripture from Isaiah, where Dr. Crowther's Bible, in the manse, was found open, and gave a short prayer. Mrs. Edith Anderson sang The Lord's Prayer with moving emotional power. Representatives of each of the church organizations gave a tribute. Mr. W. H. Hamilton, speaking for the officials of the church, expressed their sorrow over losing a dear friend and appreciation for his devoted service in Carmel. Dr. Olive Swezy, for the women of the congregation, spoke of the inspiration which the Auxiliary gained from the pastor, particularly during the war years when most of the church activities fell upon them, and how they prized his friendship. Hugo Bedau, of the young people's group that Dr. Crowther loved so dearly, told of their dependence upon his guidance and sympathy in the problems of daily living, in their recreations, desires, and aspirations. Mr. Eugene Harrah pointed to the pastor's wise advice and help in organizing the Boys' Club, now numbering more than a hundred members, with its promise to fill the social needs of Carmel.

youth. Mr. Cyrus Johnson voiced the sentiment of everyone, that Dr. Crowther's religion owed its vitality to its simplicity and the power of his message to the fact that it was stripped of secularism and creed. It was the simple teaching of Jesus.

Dr. H. B. Sharman, from close association with Dr. Crowther, tried to express the joy of their friendship and his appreciation of his friend's spiritual greatness.

Mr. Edwin Liebfried's contribution to his friend was a beautiful reading of his original poem, He Sleeps. Letter of sympathy from the rector of All Saints' Church, the Reverend Alfred Secombe, emphasized the community feeling of loss. Palm Sunday was the appropriate day for bestowing these tributes to Dr. Crowther as centuries before the populace strewed the way of their Leader with their symbol of love and devotion.

Charlotte Morgan

In the passing of Mrs. Charlotte E. Morgan, who died at a local hospital last Saturday after a few months' illness, our community has lost a well known artist and one who took an active interest in the affairs of the Village.

Born at Lakeville, California, at the family home near Petaluma, she received her early education in private schools in San Francisco and later studied at the San Francisco School of Art where she was associated with some who later became well known artists of California.

She married the late Ross Morgan, brother of M. De Neale Morgan and Mrs. Jeanie Klenke of Carmel and went, with her husband, to the Mother Lode country, where Mr. Morgan followed his profession as a mining engineer. After a few years they made their home in Berkeley.

Mrs. Morgan's natural yearning for knowledge led her to enter the University of California, from which she received her Master's degree in art at a time in her life when most persons had ceased intensive study.

After the death of her husband, she taught art in high school for a few years. About 27 years ago she came to Carmel to make her home, and she built her studio, Surf Echoes, on Lincoln near Eighth. Here she painted beautiful landscapes, still life, made pottery, read great books and graciously received her many friends. She always

Fort Ord Plans Army Week "Open House"

Army Week, honoring veterans in and out of uniform, will be held throughout the nation beginning on Army Day, April 1, and an "open house" will be held at Fort Ord on that day from noon until 5 o'clock. During that time the entire post will be open to public inspection.

Visitors will view firing on the rifle ranges, the information and education center, soldiers' club, chapel, receiving section, sports arena, service club, library and other points included in a scheduled tour.

found time to help in the activities of the community.

A charter member of the art association, her paintings were frequently on exhibition in the Art Gallery. She was a member of the Woman's Auxiliary and board of trustees of the Church of the Wayfarer. She contributed generously to the art interest of Chapter HT, P. E. O. of Pacific Grove, of which she was a member, by her talks and papers on art. Having a keen political interest and sense of patriotic duty, she served for years on the election board in her precinct.

Courageous, always hopeful, she lived for the high principles in her art and life. She was a true and loyal friend. Hers is the great reward. Ours, the memory of a rich, full life, well-lived.—Daisy B. Taylor, a friend.

Girl Scouts Plan Dance For April 19

During Easter week the Girl Scouts will omit their usual Friday meeting.

Last Friday the Carmel Girls Club, Senior Troop 28, held a Slumber Party at the Girl Scout House with sixteen girls attending. They enjoyed folk dances, charades and a general sing fest before it was time to roll into their blankets and crawl into their downy bags for sleeping on the floor. Their chaperones were Mrs. Donnan Jeffers and Miss Shirley Shively. After making breakfast they repaired to the beach with Mrs. Jeffers, who led them in games on the sand.

This Carmel Girls Club is now planning a dance to be given in the Girl Scout House on Saturday evening, April 19th, and tickets will be sold to both boys and girls of the high school. This will be one of the most attractive social events of the spring season.

SCOUT BROADCAST

On the evening of April 10, at 6:30, over KDON, the members of Troop 32 of the Carmel Boy Scouts will broadcast their camping experiences, with some of the speakers to be Eugene McFarland, John Fortier, Robert Osborne, Robert Updike, Ronald and Larry Doolittle, and Ronald Stoney. The last broadcast turned out to be so very successful that they were encouraged to give another program, and Mr. Carl Bensberg, leader, has arranged this event in response to popular demand.

against which the restless sea rushes and recedes, residents of Carmel seeking nature's playground, artists seeking its inspiration and touring motorists seeking its splendid scenes, encounter the sign: 'AUTOMOBILES 50 CTS; PEDESTRIANS 10 CTS' alongside a closed gate at the entrance."

Today, of course, the toll is only 25 cents for automobiles, walkers free, but when the State first bought it from Mr. Allan it charged 50 cents exactly as he had.

The Pine Cone of 1921 didn't mention that a village by the name of Carmelito was planned on Point Lobos and even had the streets laid out before A. M. Allan bought the place. When Allan realized that the establishment of a town on Point Lobos would destroy its natural beauty, he made a great effort to buy the lots back from the various people who had purchased home-sites and succeeded in getting most of it at considerable expense to himself. In this way, he preserved the beauty of Point Lobos and made it possible for the place to become a State Park.

Science Group Hears Impressive Lecture

The final lecture of the Life Science Series in the Monterey High School was also the most impressive event of the year for the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society, for Allan D. Cruikshank spoke on wildlife along the 250-mile shore of the Suwanee River and showed colored motion pictures of alligators, snakes, turtles, frogs, insects, flowers and birds in their natural habitat. Mr. Cruikshank enlivened the illustrations of birdlife by imitating the calls of the barred owl, sora rail, bittern, whippoorwill, robin and others, and his skill in relating humorous tales of his adventures in developing his reputation as a naturalist lifted the occasion far beyond the usual Adult School lecture level.

Mr. Ferdinand S. Ruth, biology instructor at Pacific Grove High School, has been acting as chairman for the Life Science Series, and he is so gratified with the large crowds who have attended all the lectures of the season that he is already making plans to have a similar series next spring. At the same time, as president of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society, Mr. Ruth is assisting Dr. A. W. Angwin in making arrangements for the appearance in this region of five nationally known speakers on the subject of birds and their environments. At a later date details of this project will be announced.

Son For The Stetsons

Last Sunday a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Stetson, who live at the Garden Nook on Carmelo with their little daughter, Andree. The new arrival will be tagged with a Junior, his father announces, but he will be called Lee. Mr. and Mrs. Stetson have been operating the attractive Carmel Art Shop in the Seven Arts Court.

Spring Birthday Party

The Carmel Pre-School held its Spring birthday party last week when children having birthdays during the Spring acted as hosts and hostesses, cutting and serving the big birthday cake. A program followed, showing the study and projects of the semester, each child presenting its own contribution. Children taking part were Winston Sargent, Midge Elliott, Deane Pomeroy, Brian Le Neve, Patty Levis, Susie Blair, Ted Leidig, Paul Born, Eric Sorensen, Sharon Anderson, Victory Van Dyke, and Gordon Parker, Jr. Each child made an Easter card to take home and extras for Alex Robison, Susan Price, Frances Dillingham, and Louise Proper of Monterey who were absent. School will reopen April 7.

Vacationing Teachers

Getting away from it all, a number of Carmel teachers left town for the Easter vacation. Mrs. Ann Uzzell, Mrs. Mabel Kerr and Mrs. Sylvia Jordan took their sleeping bags, just in case accommodations might be scarce, and left for Death Valley. They hoped to join the College of the Pacific trek into the desert but were too late for reservations so they are going on their own. Mrs. Beatrice Rae and Mrs. Virginia Nye are also off on a motor trip. Miss Virginia Regier went to San Francisco for a taste of city life and Miss Harriet Norman and her friend, Blanche O'Neal, are spending the week in Oakland.

Attention — Painters

House painters will have to look two doors east of the present McPhillips paint shop in the future for Mrs. McPhillips is taking her line out of her hotel and apartments into a newly prepared store on San Carlos near Fifth.

Indoor Picnic

A community party which was to have been a picnic was not postponed on account of rain but the picnickers adjourned with their baskets and so forth to Sam Colburn's studio on last Saturday's damp evening, where they had a successful party. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Draper, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Todd, Mr. and Mrs. John Geisen, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Farr of San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Langdon of Palo Alto, Mrs. Cynthia Seaborn, Mrs. Carol Howard, Mrs. Marie Short, Craig Short, Mrs. Jack Belden, Neil Weston, Jake Kenny, Captain Fred Fraser, Sam Colburn, and Dave Davis.

All Saints' Auxillary

The Woman's Auxillary of All Saints' Church are happy to announce that the speaker at their April luncheon will be a distinguished newcomer to Carmel Highlands, Mrs. Henry S. Houghton. Dr. Houghton was with the Rockefeller Institute and was head for many years of the Rockefeller Foundation in Peking. Mrs. Houghton will speak from her personal Memories of Forty Years in China. Personal memories are more living to an audience than even the best of books.

The luncheon will take place at 12:30 p. m. on Wednesday next, April 9, at the Parish House on Monte Verde Street near Ocean. The charge is 75 cents. Non-members of the Auxillary are welcome and may bring guests, men or women, for whom special tables may be reserved. If reservations have not already been made, please telephone Mrs. R. Ellis Roberts, Carmel 2235-J, before Monday, April 7. The luncheon and speaker will be followed immediately by an Executive Board Meeting, which all members of the Auxillary are welcome to attend.

Mudges Have Gone

Dr. and Mrs. E. Leigh Mudge and their daughter, Miss Pauline Mudge, who have spent the winter with Miss Etta Paul, left Carmel yesterday. Dr. and Mrs. Mudge are returning to their home in Hancock, New York, and Pauline goes to Nashville, Tennessee, where she will take a position with the board of education of the Methodist Church. In the party, which is motoring east, will be Miss Betty Hall of Edinboro, Pennsylvania.

Delighted Visitors

Mrs. Jesusa Fremont has as her house guests for the Easter holidays two outstanding musicians from Southern California, who have lost their hearts to Carmel. They are Miss Ruth Hardison, professor of violin at Whittier College, who is also conductor of the Women's Symphony of Los Angeles, and her friend, Miss Lu Ruth Anderson, member of the faculty of the Whittier music department and assistant conductor of the Women's Symphony.

Quints

Beth Ingels and Peggy Carroll of the Valley are rejoicing over the birth of five cocker puppies born this week to Mollie and Robin. Two are black and three are golden. The girls paced the floor most of the night but are now doing nicely. They said they were out of cigars but they passed around some fresh eggs.

Celia Seymour's Tribute

Friends were invited to Celia Seymour's studio last week to see a portrait she had just finished of Dr. Crowther. It will eventually be given to the Church of the Wayfarer.

Forest Hill Party

Gathered around the fireplace in the living room of the Forest Hill School last week, a group of the teachers and parents enjoyed a social evening. Miss Ida M. Curtis, the Carmel artist whose paintings are often loaned to the school, was the honored guest. Dr. R. J. Blauer projected on a screen some of his Kodachrome pictures of local scenes and National Parks. An interesting feature of the evening was the reading of letters from the children in the school at Crevecoeur-en-Auge, Normandy, France, expressing thanks for the gifts that Forest Hill children had sent them. Coffee was served in the refectory where the parents showed some amazement at the gold stars the children had received for good table manners.

Trip To City

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Peck went to the city last week for a brief vacation. They returned on Friday.

Buffalo Guests Honored

Last Tuesday evening, at the home of Charles M. Daniels, a dinner party was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Watson of Buffalo, New York. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Jewett, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cunningham, and Mr. Walter Egan.

Birthday Celebrated

Last Friday was the birthday of Jane Haskell, and friends entertained her with dinner and dancing at the Mission Ranch, with a musical program at her home after midnight. The following evening there was another celebration in her honor at the Seaside home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Harris. Sam Harris' painting of the runaway white horse is on view at the Carmel Gallery.

Mylar-Robertson Wedding

Fort Ord Chapel will be the scene of the wedding of Barbara Jane Mylar and Harry Robertson, on Easter Sunday, at 2 o'clock. The ritual will be read by Chaplain William J. Washer in the presence of friends and relatives. The bride will wear a gray crepe suit with blue blouse and a halo of blue flowers. She will carry a prayer book and a handkerchief that is a family heirloom. Her sister, Mrs. Walter Reams, will act as bridesmaid. She will wear a navy blue suit with white accessories and white hat. Sam Robertson, an uncle of the groom, will be best man. Everything will be carried out with strictest simplicity and immediately after the ceremony the young couple will depart for their future home in Vallejo. Barbara Jane, known to her friends as Janie, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mylar of Carmel. She was graduated from Carmel High School only a year ago. The groom is staff sergeant in the Air Corps, stationed at Hamilton Field.

Down From Stockton

Mrs. T. F. Baxter has as her guests for the Easter holidays her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Detrich, and her four children, who came down Sunday from Stockton. Dr. Philip Baxter and his family also came down Sunday for a holiday but he was called back to Piedmont almost immediately after their arrival. Mrs. Detrich and her children are occupying Mrs. Baxter's house in the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

Good Neighbor Lee

Miss Adele Lee, who has been with the American Embassy in Guatemala for the past two years, is visiting her cousin, Mae Lent, in her home on Monte Verde. Miss Lee is enroute to her new post in Lima, Peru. Miss Lee loves Latin America and feels that the dream of the good neighbor could be furthered if tourists were given a set of dos and don'ts with their passports when they start out to visit Latin America.

Went To Desert, Kept Going

Mrs. Clifford Cook and her daughter, Sunny, went for a drive enjoying the wild flowers and looking at birds. They became so intoxicated with spring and vacation that they just kept on going and ended up in Death Valley. Last heard of the runaways were in Susanville and headed for Ogden, Utah. If they don't get any more notions, they will be home in time for Sunny to get to school on Monday. Beth Ingels responded to an S.O.S. and came to The Pine Cone to crack the whip over the help while the boss was away.

Quick Recovery

Miss Marcia Hill Haskell underwent a surgical operation at the Peninsula Community hospital last week and appears to have broken records for speedy recovery, for she now is home again.

Left For New Orleans

Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston and Mrs. Anne Vaughan left bright and early Monday morning for a six weeks' trip. They headed for New Orleans when they left Carmel and expect to visit Washington, D. C., and New York.

Peggy Aitkenhead Returns

Peggy Aitkenhead, popular secretary of the well-loved staff of the U.S.O. that made Carmel the happy hunting ground for service men during the war, has returned to Carmel. Miss Aitkenhead has been in Southern California and reports that Ann Barrows, former head of Carmel U.S.O., is in Long Beach doing radio work. Miss Aitkenhead is occupying Mrs. Ann Vaughan's home at Casanova and Ocean and with her is her guest, Mrs. Emma Evans, well known pianist.

"Doc" Jones Excited

Russell (Doc) Jones has just returned from a visit with Clifton Williams in Carlsbad, California. According to Doc, Clifton Williams has the most astonishing ranch of five acres, every inch under intense cultivation, raising four crops of vegetables a year and is also the proud possessor of two varieties of peanuts which he is successfully growing (as if one kind of peanut isn't enough.) Clifton Williams is nothing if not versatile. He was a former cowboy, dean of law at Marquette, Wisconsin, and after coming to Carmel became a painter. He is not letting the peanuts interfere with his art and is still busy with his brushes.

Scene Of Her Rhymes

Margaret Lewis Albanese, former Carmel resident, whose poems appear frequently in the Pine Cone, is spending a few days with her father, Sam Lewis, of begonia fame. Mrs. Albanese with her husband and small daughter are now living in San Rafael, where she has a class in creative writing sponsored by the AAUM.

L. A. Opportunity

Mrs. Alice Gary, popular member of the Golden Bough Players, has been offered such a good opportunity to use her interior-decorator talents for Barker Bros. in Los Angeles that she has had to leave Carmel for the time being. She insists that a summer in Carmel is a must, however, and she will return late in June. Since Mrs. Gary is all of five feet tall, one of her first difficulties when she arrived in this country from Hungary was the necessity to climb a stool at a lunch counter. While she stood perplexed she was lifted off her feet by a gigantic cowboy in high-heeled riding boots, deposited on the top of the stool—and forthwith left to consider ways and means of descending after lunch. While in Carmel Mrs. Gary has been the house guest of Mrs. Louise Grigsby and has assisted Helen Brazil in the arranging of antiques.

Mrs. G. L. Atwood and little son, Pudge, left Wednesday morning for Seattle and expect to sail for Japan, April 10.

The window of the VAGABOND'S CORNER in the Pine Inn Garden is wonderfully decorated for Easter with an embroidered altar cloth from the private chapel of a 19th century Russian czar and two magnificent porcelain eggs which were traditional gifts at Easter from the Czar and Czarina of Russia to their friends. The egg of Russ-de-Boeuf porcelain bears the imperial crest and was a gift from the Czar, while the white porcelain one was the Czarina's gift. You'll find beautiful English porcelain tea-cups in the VAGABOND'S CORNER, too.

There are portable phonographs of both the electrical and the wind-up variety in LIAL'S MUSIC SHOP on Monte Verde and Ocean. One small machine is a complete electrical phonograph with amplifier in spite of its small size. Its tone is good and its design is sturdy enough for lugging about from party to party. At $29.95 it's a good buy. Al Goodman's new recording of I'm Always Chasing Rainbows sounded very solid on it. In LIAL'S you'll find many other portable phonographs and innumerable records of all kinds—from boogie to Isaac Stern's recording of Beethoven's Seventh Sonata for Piano and Violin.

News from THE STOCKING SHOP in the Golden Bough Court on Ocean Avenue opposite the Pine Inn includes the Dancing Twins seamless hose from Triumph Mills—a 400 needle stocking which is very sheer; new lisle hose in a heavier weight and cotton mesh in a non-run knit in a pleasing shade; Ormond's 45 gauge or 4 thread nylons in an outsize model with most generous legs and tops; wool, rayon and cotton blended stockings to resist the coolness and the rigours of Carmel; and lastly white Nylons by Triumph in a four thread weight and in a 51 gauge, 30 denier weight which is sheer and becoming.

A new belt's always a good addition to a collection of accessories and the SOUTHSEAS HANDICRAFT SHOP in the Golden Bough Court on Ocean Avenue opposite the Pine Inn has some beautiful belts of pandanus and coconut fibre. Some of them are rather rainbow hued but others combine two colors of red and white in nice geometric designs. They're handmade and durable. The shop's Fijian dolls are dressed in authentic costumes and there's something appealing about the Fijian housewife in her grass skirt. For draping about the neck, try the necklaces of pikaki shells which are very light pearly white shells of infinitesimal size strung into generous ropes.

For dressing up or down this weekend you might see the COUNTRY SHOP on Ocean Avenue. It's dressing down weather and the bathing suits and pedal pushers in the COUNTRY SHOP are eye-catching and comfortable. A white jersey bathing suit boasts pert bloomer pants and an intricately cut yet revealing bodice. There're other suits in cotton, rayon and wool jersey in solid color or printed patterns in one or two-piece styles. The denim-chambray pedal pushers look very nice—cool and crisp and well-tailored, with blue trousers and truncated top of striped chambray to expose the midriff.

Physicians Formula Cosmetics, in the DOLORES PHARMACY, are cosmetics developed by a physician to reduce the danger of allergic reactions to cosmetic ingredients. These cosmetics contain none of the common known irritants such as orris root and chalk and they're recommended for the normal skin as well as for the ultra-sensitive. This line contains all essentials for body and complexion care and there's also a line of men's toiletries made from the same hypo-allergenic substances. Mary Dunhill's personalized cologne and lipstick—bearing your own monogram—is new this week too at the DOLORES PHARMACY.

GUMP'S has the answer for this good spring barbecuing weather. The answer is a rubber tired aluminum barbecue pit with fire box, deep containers for keeping food hot, a warming oven, a chopping board, and other shelves and containers neatly and compactly fitted together to be rolled out wherever you wish your dinner prepared. To serve your dinner prepared with such elegance you may use the Westward Ho pottery covered with famous brands from the west. The Westward Ho dishes are of a most generous size—big plates and platters and bowls and almost mammoth coffee cups.

A Mabs satin lastex bathing suit from the SILVER THIMBLE will add lustre to your beaching—particularly if it comes in a rich shade of blue or fuchsia—and there's a wonderful terry cloth robe in THE SILVER THIMBLE to wear over your suit. This robe is made of heavy fine textured terry cloth in a flattering design with full skirt and gathered sleeves set in a narrow cuff. For pedal pushing look at THE SILVER THIMBLE's pedal pushers in gray cotton cheviot combined with a tailored top in either red, blue or yellow.

Willard McGraw

Willard W. McGraw, 58, a native of Detroit, Michigan, who had lived in Carmel for the last 21 years, died at his home on Lincoln at Tenth on March 29. He leaves his wife, Sophia McGraw, and a daughter, Mrs. Darrell Ingraham, both of Carmel, a brother, C. McGraw of Michigan, and two sisters, Mrs. Kate Wurga, of Pacific Grove, and Mrs. Marian Carter, of Los Angeles. T. A. Dorney had charge of arrangements for the funeral, and services were held on April 1 at the Carmel Mission.

Wayfarer Women's Auxiliary

Two sacred songs dedicated to the memory of Dr. James E. Crowther, pastor, and Mrs. Charlotte Morgan, member of the Church of the Wayfarer, both of whom passed away during March, were sung by Mrs. Grace Howden at the meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the church on Tuesday afternoon. The numbers sung were How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings, by Samuel Liddle, and How Beautiful Upon the Mountains, by H. Flaxington Harker. Miss Margaret Sherman Lea played the accompaniment. Miss Agnes L. Williston read a tribute to Mrs. Morgan, and Miss Etta Paul read a poem by Henry Van Dyke, The Lily of the Yarrow, a spiritual symbol of death, the whole group serving as opening devotions.

Mrs. Tom Douglas, Auxiliary president, called attention to the beautiful bouquets of spring flowers in the room, which she had gathered that morning, a few from each garden of the Auxiliary members, which were to be taken after the meeting to members of long standing who are no longer able to attend the meetings. Later in the afternoon she and two other members carried the bouquets to Mrs. Irene de Galler, the Misses Harriet and Helen Pierce, at their homes, and to Mrs. Carrie Main at the Community Hospital, and Miss Margaret White, at a rest home in Monterey. Mrs. Blanchard Steeves reported for the World Friendship Circle $65.35 in offerings, with monthly contributions to the Council of Church Women for the benefit of Hay's Chapel in Seaside, and $30 sent in January for support and education of a girl in China, with a like amount to be sent in June to complete the year's pledge. The money comes from voluntary gifts by interested members. Mrs. Ada McGee reported receipt of $30 for the leper committee, to support and furnish treatment for one year for a child at a mission hospital in a foreign country.

The Auxiliary voted to have a social tea the afternoon of May 6, instead of the usual box lunch at noon, with a musical program. Mrs. Louis Sawyer was appointed hostess chairman for the occasion, to select her assistants as she chooses. Mrs. Douglas appointed on the nominating committee Mrs. Raymond Smith, Mrs. J. O. Handley, and Miss Etta Paul. Miss Olive Swezy announced the next Wayfarer Circle meeting for April 15 at two o'clock at the church. A large circle of members met in the forenoon Tuesday, beginning at 10:30 to make bandages for the leper work; they will work again the day of the May tea in order to get one full carton of bandages as their spring quota. Mrs. Edith Catlin was chairman last fall, with Mrs. McGee taking charge when other duties prevented the former from serving. After the business meeting Dr. E. O. Sisson discussed The Realm of Faith, reported elsewhere in The Pine Cone.

Returns From East

Mrs. Elsie Godwin Lewis returned on Tuesday afternoon to Carmel and is staying with Miss Marjory Pegram.

not being shown a proper spirit of celebration.

Getting Around The Peninsula

of the Monterey County office of the California Highway Patrol has offered his services if assistance is needed in giving instruction, because he recognizes the importance of the project.

x x x

While you are making those elaborate plans for Army Week, flying the flag and attending parades, try at the same time to remember that next week is Be Kind to Animals Week. Monterey County has a number of humane problems not yet solved, in spite of the fact that this region has a larger population of pets than almost any other section of the country per human inhabitant.

King Mederos of the County Humane Society has just been reminiscing about a beautiful cocker spaniel that somebody in Pebble Beach gave to somebody else who have him to somebody else who forgot they had a dog and moved away to mysterious new pastures. The lonely little cocker began to haunt strange houses and tried to live in a state of nature, but mankind (not kind man) had carried him too far in dog-evolution and he was not equipped to face the elements. He met with competition in some unknown guise, and when Mr. Mederos found him one of his eyes was hanging six inches down his cheek.

He was gently taken to Dr. Ralph Weston, who operated on him, and presently he was one of the most lovable animals at the shelter. About twenty different people offered to adopt him and he was finally awarded to the Zanetta family, who voluntarily made a contribution to the Humane Society to cover his hospital bill.

There is no way of measuring the amount of happiness the little cocker has been able to dispense since the time when he was rescued, but, heart-hunger being what it is, you may take it for granted that he has already repaid the world. In some quarters a waif of this kind would have been shot (yes, I said shot, although this is California and lethal chambers are available in the present era) and the loss to the human race would have been as extensive as the good the little pup now represents. Think of this as the tangible evidence of the need for celebrating Be Kind to Animals Week.

Whiteside Slides

For the benefit of the new building that the Woman's Club is planning, last Monday evening Mrs. Therese Whiteside gave a showing of her camera paintings at the Golden Bough Playhouse. She had chosen as her subject scenes on the Monterey Peninsula, and the audience had the impression of being taken for a tour along the Seventeen Mile Drive, and through the Carmel Valley and the Big Sur country. Pictures of the last section were of especial interest because Mrs. Whiteside commented on the places mentioned in some of the poems by Robinson Jeffers which she had been able to photograph. The slides were unusually soft in color and carefully arranged in composition, and they provided a fitting entertainment for the beginning of Holy Week because of the tranquil atmosphere they presented. Mr. Edward Kuster provided the accompanying music from his record library.
